The best times to visit Airlie Beach:

The Whitsundays is on the same latitude as Rio de Janeiro, Mauritius, Tahiti and New Caledonia. The climate is subtropical with an average daily temperature of 27 degrees. That makes the Whitsundays and Airlie Beach an ideal place to visit just about any time of the year.

The summer months can be challenging to some with January is the warmest month averaging 30 degrees. By contrast our Southern cousins wonder why we are rugging up in July when some day time temperatures dip to 23 degrees.

School holidays are always busy, particularly the September / October break. It is at this time that the sea and winds are at their calmest for the year combined with sublime day and night time temperatures. This also makes it the busiest time of year in town generally filling restaurants and island day trips, so you are advised to booked ahead!

As the year closes in on Christmas the fun continues with mid october being the time of the Whitsunday Reef Festival, then Schoolies and the full Christmas break. The town otherwise thrives on the constant flow of International tourists.

Airlie Beach is the gateway to the Whitsundays playground and the holiday village of Airlie lies on the shores of Airlie Bay - a pretty palm fringed beach overlooking blue calm waters dotted with sailing vessels of all sizes from all over the world.

The location of the village makes Airlie Beach the coastal hub of the Whitsundays, and a mecca for tourists wishing to dive the Great Barrier Reef, or sail around its 74 islands visiting the many tropical Island Resorts or in search of their own secluded palm fringed piece of paradise.
